Selected Story.

How She Did It.

Peter Pennywise was in deep grief. All the hopes of a life-time were to be frustrated. The fond ambition he had so long nursed, his pet scheme to make the name of Pennywise the greatest in the land, was now no more. His only son Launcelot, was to be married, and married to a plebeian—to a girl who had wealth, but no name, no family, no ancestry, or no coat-of-arms on the panel of her coach.

Could human misery be greater? Could the Ossa of grief piled on the Pelion of disappointment make a heavier load of sorrow? No. The cup of Pennywise was full to the brim, and he must drain it to the lees, however bitter the draught.

Such was the tenor of old Pennywise's musings as he paced the velvet-carpeted floor of his library the evening when our story opens. A conversation his son had with him, as they sat together sipping their wine after dinner, had been the cause of this tumult in the breast of Peter Pennywise.

Launcelot was a weak-eyed and pink-skinned youth, with thin yellow hair, which he parted in the center, and a little wisp of saffron whiskers on each side of his face, the pulling of which with his nervous little hand constituted the principle employment of the scion of the house of Pennywise.

"Father," said Launcelot after gulping down two or three glasses of wine to give him courage—"father."

"Well, my son, what do you want?" asked the pompous head of the house.

"What do you think of marriage?"

"What do I think of what?" questioned the surprised Pennywise.

"Marriage," replied Launcelot. "Matrimony, you know. 'Two hearts with but a single thought' two souls that beat as one,' and all that."

"I think that every man should marry, and I would be glad to hear that you had fixed your affections on some lady with the proper qualification," said Pennywise.

"What are the proper qualifications, father?" inquired Launcelot,

"Whatever else you do, be sure to never disgrace the name of Pennywise by a plebeian connection."

"Why is our family such a great one?" demanded the young man.

"A great one!" echoed Pennywise. "Why, it's the greatest in the land. Study carefully the genealogical tree that hangs in the hall and which cost the five thousand dollars to have properly traced, and you will see the name of Pennywise was as well-known as that of Williams at the time of the Norman conquest, and that the coat-of-arms is one of the most respectable and ancient that ever heraldry boasted of."

"Well of course that's all true, father; but I've heard some of the fellers at the club say that granfather was a pawn——"

"Your grandfather was a broker and banker, as I myself am, and was fully aware of the responsibility of being worthy of his family," said Mr. Pennywise, interupting his son; "therefore he began my education by impressing the value of a family name upon my young mind, and so when I had grown older, and he intimated to me that I ought to marry the highly respectable Miss Poundfoolish, I went to that lady, proposed, and was accepted. Thus I consolidated the two great families of Pennywise and Poundfoolish, and you and your two sisters are the result. But you ask my opinion of matrimony. Are you thinking of marrying?"

"Ye-es, sir," grasped Launcelot,

"And whom do you propose honoring with your name?"

"Miss—a—Miss Petersham," answered the youthful Pennywise.

"Petersham—Petersham; I never heard of a Petersham. Who is she?" demanded the old gentleman, with a darkening brow.

"She is very rich."

And Launce faltered.

"Riches are very well, but do you not need them. Your mother left you all her fortune, and I shall leave you half of mine if you marry as I wish. Who is this—this Petersham? What does her father do?"

"He keeps a large clothing establishment."

"What!" roared Pennywise. "A tailor It shall never be. The arms of Pennywise shall never be married with a needle. or disfigured by—great Heaven! a—goose. It shall be—never—never!"

"It must be," said Launcelot, going to the door, "'cause I've popped, and she's acepted me."

The old man mechanically arose, and walk to his study, where he began pacing the floor, as we found him at the commencement of our story.

A gentle knock on the door roused Mr. Pennywise, and bidding the knocker come in, he settled himself in his easy-chair, and prepared to receive his visitor.

The visitor proved to be the governness of the two Misses Pennywise, age twelve and fourteen, whose disorderly conduct and willful destruction of wardrobe and text-books occasioned many a visit to the library after the dinner hour by the governess.

She was a neat, pretty little body, this governess, and had often attracted the attention of the young bloods who came to visit Launcelot; but she paid not the slightest attention either to their compliments or glances, attending quietly to her pupils, and seeming wholy wrapped up in her charge. In fact Charley Gushington, who was falling in love with every girl he met, once observed of her to Launcelot:

"Launce, that governess gal—what's her name? Amy Dorr?—ain't got any heart. The only thing she could love would be more pupils, or a plenty of money."

"Good evening, Miss Dorr," said Pennywise, when Amy had entered the library. "What can I do for you this evening?"

"Excuse me, sir," said Amy hesitatingly. "I wished to see you about my pupils, but I can see you are greived and agitated. and, as I fancy I know the agitation, I will not annoy you with my commonplace complaints."

"You know the cause!" grasped Pennywise.

"Yes, sir. I have no wish to intrude my opinions or my knowledge, but the the cause of your grief is, I imagine. the approaching marriage of your son, and I think he is actiug most foolishly."

"You are right, Miss Dorr," asserted the old gentleman—"you are right. He is acting most foolishly—most foolishly."

"Cannot you prevent it?" asked the governess.

"No; I am powerless—powerless He will wed the tailor's daughter and disgrace the great, the aristocratic name of Pennywise."

There was a smile playing around the corners of Miss Dorr's mouth, and a satirical twinkel in her eye, as Mr. Pennywise spoke of his aristocratic name.

"Can you not threaten to disinherit him?" she asked.

"No use—no use," groaned the disconsolate Pennywise. "He has half a million left him by his mother."

"A half a million," cried Amy, and the smile and twinkle faded away, leaving her face stern and calculating looking "Mr. Pennywise, this marriage would be scandalous, Listen. I know Miss. Petersham well. In fact, she considers me her intimate friend———"

"My son's wife the intimate friend of a governess!" sighed Pennywise, regardless of the feelings of the girl before him.

"Yes," replied Amy, not heeding the insult; "but she is only a tailor's daughter."

"Alas, alas! too true, too true?" said the unfortunate Pennywise.

"Mr. Pennywise," continued Amy, "you are rich, very rich; and I am poor, very poor. You regard this marriage as a disgrace to your family. I think I can prevent it. What will you give me if I do?"

"My dear Miss Dorr," cried old Pennywise, jumping up from his chair, "if you can prevent my son from marrying the tailor's daughter, I will bestow upon you ten thousand dollars."

"Tis a bargain," said the governess. "Please write a little agreement to this effect: That as soon as I give you proof that Miss Petersham is married to some one else than your son' you pay me the sum of ten thousand dollars."

"Married to some one else than my son?" said Pennywise, as he was writing the agreement.

"Yes," answered Amy, that is my plan. "I will make her marry a young man I have in my mind now."

"But my son will not permit it; he is fascinated by this tailor's daughter."

"I will see that he permits," the governess said, taking the agreement Mr. Pennywise had out and signed. "My ——"

"Yes," said the old man; 'do that and I will bless you."

And the interview ended.

For the week immediately following the evening the foregoing conversation took place. Miss Amy, very much to their delight, absented herself entirely from her pupils; and she might be seen any afternoon walking arm in arm with the lovely Miss Petersham.

During these walks somehow, Mr. Charley Gushington invariably met the two ladies, and joined them in their walk —nor did he seem to regard these meetings as at all unexpected. The fact was that the wily governess had introduced Mr. Gushington to Miss Petersham, and was unknown to them, fanning the flame that they declared was consuming both their young hearts.

Three weeks had passed since the night Miss Amy had agreed to prevent the marriage of young Pennywise with Miss Petersham, when one morning the governess presented herself to the clerks in the office of Mr. Pennywise, and asked to see that gentleman. She was ushered into a private office where she found the aristocratic Pennywise very mudh surprised at his visitor.

"To what good fortune am I indebted for this visit?" he asked, wheeling around from his desk.

"To the best of fortune," answered the governess. Please read this advertisement that I am going to insert in tomorrow morning's paper," and she handed him a slip of paper. on which he read the following:

"GUSHINGTON-PETERSHAM.—On the 17th inst., at Grace Church, by the Rev. Jeremiah Waller, D.D., S.T.D., Mr. Charley Gushington to Emeline, eldest daughter of Jacob Petersham, Esq., all of this city. No cards."

"My dear Miss Dorr," said Pennywise, jumping up from his chair, "you have save the family—you have done wonders! I owe to you a debt of gratitude I can never pay."

"Well here is a debt you owe me that you can pay," said Amy, producing the argreement. "I will thank you for ten thousand dollars in greenbacks. I don't want a check—I want the money."

"My dear Miss Dorr," said the banker, "if it took my last dollar, I would not repudiate your claim."

And drawing a check for the amount, he called a messenger, and bade him go to the bank and get ten one thousand dollar notes. After the mesenger had departed on his errand, the old gentlemau said to the governess, and said:

"How did my son bear the news that Miss Petersham was false to him? thank Heaven, my family will not now be disgraced!"

"When first he discovered that Miss Petersham was receiving attention from Mr. Gushington, he threatened to commit suicide; but I finally induced him to listen to reason, and he attended the ceremony last night."

"But how did you effect this alteration in him? You are a witch, or, I should say, a good fairy. How did you manage to do it?"

"Will the boy be long at the bank?" asked the governess.

"No, he is here now. I see you want your money before you give your information quite right. Well there it is."

And he handed her the money.

Miss Amy walked to the other end of the room, and placed the money safe in her bosom. Then turning to Mr. Pennywise she said:

"Mr. Pennywise, you asked me how I obtained your son's consent to the marriage between Mr Gushington and Miss Petersham."

"And saved my son from alliance with a woman sociably beneath him," interrnpted the old man. "You marvel among women, will you tell me?"

"I will."

"How did you do it?"

"Well I married him myself. Good-morning, sir."

Miscellaneous.

An Incident in the Cars.

On the whole, pleasant traits of character are not common in the cars. This opinion I expressed to my friend Summers the other day. In reply to my remarks he related a little adventure, which, as it is apropos, and moreover, involves a little love and sentiment, I give without apology and in his own words. It appears that in most unlikely places love and sentiment may be discovered.

"I was escorting home the lovely Charlotte ——, to whom I was at the time quite devoted. Charlotte could scarcely find room to spread her crinoline and arrange her voluminous flounces. I stood up near her, there being no vacant seat.

"After a few minutes came in a poor woman, who deposited a basket of clothes on the front platform, and held in her arms a small child, while a little girl hung to her dress. She looked tired and weary, but there was no vacant seat; to be sure Charlotte might have contracted her flounces, but she did not. Beside her, however, sat a very lovely and elegant young woman, who seemed trying by moving down closer to others, to make space enough for the stranger between herself and Miss D. At last she succeeded, and with the sweetest blush I ever saw, she invited the female to be seated. Charlotte D. drew her drapery around her, and blushed too, but it was not a pretty blush at all, and she looked annoyed at the proximity of the newcomer, who was, however, clean and decently, though very thinly clad.

"The unknown lady drew her little girl upon her lap, and wrapped her velvet mantle around her small, half-clad form, and put her muff over her half-frozen little hands.

"So great was the crowd that I alone seemed to observe, The child shivered; the keen wind from the door blew upon her unprotected neck. I saw the young lady quietly draw from under her mantle a little shawl, which she softly put on the shoulders of the little one; the mother looked on with confused wonder. After a short time she arose to leave the cars, and would have removed the shawl, but the unknown gently whispered, 'No, keep it for her.' The woman did not answer; the conductor hurried her out, and her eyes swam with tears. I noticed her as she decended to a basement and I hastily remarked the house.

"Soon after, my unknown rose to depart. I was in despair, for I wanted to follow and discover her residence, but could not leave Miss D.

"How glad, then, I was to see her bowing, as she passed out, to a mutual ——— her name and address.

"To shorten a story as much as possible, that lady is now my wife. In the small incident which introduced her to me, she showed her real character. A few days after our marriage I showed her the blessed crimson shawl, which I redeemed from its owner, and shall keep as a memento. There are sometimes pleasant things to be found in unexpected places; certainly I may be said to have picked out my wife in the cars."

A Governor's Views on Babies.

GOV. BAGLEY OF MICHIGAN REPLIES TO THE SECRETARY OF THE KALAMAZOO AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY—A DELICATE POSITION.

STATE OF MICH., EX. OFFICE,
DETROIT, Aug. 8, 1874.

Frank Little, Secretary:

Dear sir—Your favor of the 27th nofying me of my appointment as one of a "Committee on Ba bies" at your coming county fair, is at hand. The position is certainly a delicate, and, to a man in public life, a dangerous one.

Suppose, for instance, I was a candidate for office, would not every father whose baby failed to receive a premium vote square against me? Would not every mother whose baby has failed to receive the attention of the committee use her powers of persuasion inducing her neighbors to vote for "the other man?" Providence has very kindly implanted in the heart of every crow a decided belief that its "baby crow" is the blackest of all crows, and no argument of counsel could ever convince the mother crow to the contrary; and this is right.

Were it otherwise, our babyhood would not be the reign of kinghood and queenhood that it is. If our parents had not believed us to be the brightest and best of the human family, and that we were born to be Presidents, or at least Congressmen, we should have been drowned like kittens before we had reached our teens. But were I to undertake the duty you request of me, other objections loom up before me.

I do not know the opinions of my fellow members of the committee on "babies." I should want to know what sort of babies they have had if they have had any. I want to know whether they like fat babies or lean babies, whether blue eyed or black eyed, gray eyed or hazle eyed, boys or girls, blonds or brunettes. Above all, I should like to know whether they like babies at all. I do not suppose for a moment your society would have been so careless as to select a committee any member of which did not like babies, yet you may have done so. If by accident you have, then you have spoiled the job. I couldn't serve with any such person. Their judgment would not be worth a straw.

Again, I want to know if there is any member of the committee who never owned a baby of his own I should most certainly object to serving with any such unfortunate individual. What would he know about babies? How much weight would his opinion have on the important question of which was the "finest and handsomest baby not exceeding eighteen months of age." A decision made by such a one would be laughed at by every mother in Michigan. I have seen babies of my own. Some of them are too old to be called babies by the outside world, but to me they are and ever will be babies. Now, I try to be fair and decently honest in my judgment of men and things, but when it comes to babies I can't do it; I shall be making comparisons constantly, keeping my own babies before me as a standard of excellence. It is of no use. I can't serve and do my duty to myself, my wife, my babies, my State, my neighbors, and my prolific fellow citizens of Kalamazoo county.

Your friend, JOHN J. BAGLEY.

There is already, as we have previously noted, a little dirsension among the Grangers. Some of "the embattled farmers" want to know where all the money goes which is paid into the Grange treasuries. There are 12,000 Granges, it is urged, in existence, with an average of 50 members each, and $2500,000, it is estimated, have been paid in initiation fees and dues. "What has become of all this cash? Who is enriching himself by his grangership?" are questions which the curious are beginning to ask. It is not a point upon which we can give any information. Perhaps the estimates are too high; and possibly the Granges are too much like supper-clubs.

Nashua, Ogle County, Ill., has a wild man. He inhabits the neighboring woods, and wears a dress which suggests that he has employed the State Prison tailors. He has been pursued by boys, who report that his face is covered with a pastboard mask, with painted lions on the cheeks, and his feet are enveloped in rag carpet. He is a wild man of the timid sort, and flees from the small boys as from wrath to come. His gray hair hangs down his shoulders. He also groans and growls like a bear, and clears a foot-board fence with agility. Sometimes he walks on his hands and feet; and altogether he is a rare bird.

There is a young woman in Marshall county, Kansas, said to be heiress of an estate of $15,000,000 in England. The yarn runs that she was brought to this country by a gipsy, having been stolen from her parents—that she is a member of one of the noblest families in Great Britain—that the old hag who brought her here, confessed to these facts upon the bed of death. The young woman has received a letter from an English lawyer who asks her to come over and take possesion. And she is going over, to the great grief of all the marriagable young men of Kansas.

They found the regular Conflagration Bible in the ruins of the Allegheny fire; open too at, the right place, viz., Lamentations iv., 2: "The Lord has accomplished His fury; He has poured out His fierce anger, and has kindled a fire in Zion, and hath devoured the foundation thereof." The sacred volumne was badly scorched around the edges. The man who picked it up was a printer, wandering among the ruins. Great curiosity was that Bible.

Several Southern papers are urging the importance of introducing the English sparrow into the cotton fields as a sure remedy for the worm, and the effective service of this industrious bird in ridding the parks and trees of New-York and other cities of the caterpillars which used to infest them is confidently cited as a conclusive argument in favor of the plan.

A THING OR TWO TO THINK ABOUT.

It is well sometimes to study the history of parties, and see what they have done for the country—for its trade and transportation and internal growth. Look at the Democratic party for instance. What did it do for the encouragement of the oncoming trade of the Republic? Almost nothing. The leaders of that party took the position, and they based their action upon it, that they had no constitutional right or power to open the great natural water courses of the country—to increase their advantages by clearing out harbors and opening up rivers. As the result not a single dollar was appropriated, for years and years, towards laying the foundation of our great communication between States in the way of increased transportation, not one bar was taken out of the mouth of any harbor, not one river was cleared of a single snag, not one step taken to make the great intercourses of the country passible or safe.

On the other hand, how has it been since the Republican party came into power? Why it has done more twice over than was ever done in all the previous years by all the parties that preceded it. It has exercised the right, claimed the right, asserted the duty of promoting and aiding great internal improvements, and it will carry out that duty in grappling the question and settling it in the interest of American industry. *

And if the Southern States do not become foolish by placing themselves in antagonism with the national Government the time is at hand when they may expect to obtain national aid in important improvements of this nature. Take North Carolina for instance. She needs aid from the general Government. But what course is she pursuing to obtain it? Stubbornly and defiantly she places herself politically in opposition to the National Administration. She sends men to Congress who have fought it at every step, opposed it, abused it, misrepresented it. Does anybody suppose that such men can exert any influence at Washington? In a hopeless minority in Congress and inimical politically with the Departments, they can do nothing.

But this is not all. This exhibition of short sightedness and want of sagacity on the part of the State not only jeopardizes our chances for National appropriations, but it discourages, almost checks the immigration we so much need.

We throw out these suggestions, now that the political excitement is over, for the earnest and thoughtful of our readers to reflect upon.

THE TIDE TURNING.

seemed favorable for the Democracy. They certainly had some reason for looking with encouragement and hope upon the near future. Public opinion was apparently inclining towards giving them a new trial. Indeed in certain quarters it was admitted to be quite possible that they would control the next House of Representatives. But all this has been suddenly and completely changed. The spectre of repudiation has been raised by the Western Democrats and in Kentucky and Tennessee gangs of brutal and stupid white men have committed murder and outrage upon the negroes. The North was becoming disgusted with the mis-rule in South Carolina, and was ready to aid in putting it down. The outrages, however, perpetrated in States where the whites are in the majority have raised a feeling of indignation through the North which will roll up the usual Republican majorities. And the Democrats can thank the stupidity of their Westrn brethren and the brutality of the Ku-Klux ruffians of Kentuky and Tennessee for it.

The editor of the Louisville Courier Journal, though a Democrat, is bold and frank enough to rebuke his brethren. He denounces the outrages on the blacks, and plainly foretells the result. He says:

"The South has everything to loose and nothing to gain by outlawry, and where the Democratic party is in power, as in Kentucky and Tennessee, there is no excuse for the exercise of the example set in States like Louisana and South Carolina. * * * *

As long as there is lawlesness to be suppressed by the strong hand of the military power, it strikes us that General Grant will find advantage in the most relentless proceedings against the South, and, unless we greatly mistake his character, he will not fail to pursue the line already shadowed by the Attorney General. The next House of Representatives is lost to the Democracy. In those districts of the North and West where there were doubtful contests the balance which inclined to the Democracy will, under the influence of recent events, be thrown the other way."

OUR NEXT EXHIBITION AND FAIR.

TO THE CITIZENS OF PASQUOTANK AND ADJOINING COUNTIES.

The Executive Committee of the Albemarle Agricultural Society, feeling a deep interest in its next annual Exhibition which is to be held on its Fair Grounds at Elizabeth City on the 28th 29th and 30th of October, make an earnest appeal to the people to likewise take an interest and to aid it in every possible way.

We desire to place the farmers of this section in the position to realize all the advantages which soil and climate has so bountifully bestowed upon them. We ask them to keep up with the progress of improvement now so rapidly going on in every department of rural husbandry. The annual gathering together which the Fairs of our Society will give them an opportunity for doing, ought to be cheerfully embraced by all those who desire to know what others have done in furthering the interests of Agriculture, or in mollifying the labor of the working classes. The wear and tear of the physical powers is often ameliorated by a short draught upon the mental faculties. The man who reads and thinks, and plans, is always ahead of him who is content to do as his forefathers did before him.

The practical experience of one man, who always has his eyes and ears open to catch the easiest mode of accomplishing the various and multiplied avocations of industrial life, may diffuse the knowledge he acquires in no readier, cheaper, and more efficient method, than by meeting and conversing with his neighbors. How often is it the case that a man who considers himself proficient in his trade, enters the shop of some humble mechanic, and there sees a method of doing some particular thing, much superior to that to which he had been accustomed? So it is with the Farmer. What an interesting "encyclopedia of useful knowledge" the recorded conversations of experienced and practical farmers would make if it could be transmitted cheaply to the uninitiated! How many beginners have been perplexed at the numerous failures they encountered, which the experience of practical men might thus prevent! There is no way in which a good Farmer can be of more service to his brethren than by mingling with the masses that gather at Annual Fairs, and imparting to others the knowledge he has acquired by patient industry and well directed labor. The discussions amongst practical men always tend to the developement of important truths.

But there is another point which constitutes a prominent feature in Agricultural exhibitions. Everyone who brings a good animal, or something better than common in the vegetable kingdom, lets it be widely known where these things can be obtained by others who want them. There are excelent plants that flourish unknown beyond the little garden, or the open field, or the secluded forest, which might be made to contribute materially to the benefit alike of those who bring them into notice, and those who use them for food; many a flower that "blooms and wastes its fragance on the desert air"; many a relic of a by-gone age, locked up in the cabinet of a private citizen, which might develope important points in our early history; and many fossils that tell us of generations of living things that have long since passed away, that form the data upon which important questions are often decided.

All these, and many other things besides, form legitimate subjects for exhibition at Fairs and add greatly to their interest. The exhibitor honors us by displaying them to us, and honors himself more by the evidence he thus gives us of his taste, his learning, and his liberality. Shall we appeal in vain within our own bounds to make this one of the best societies, if not the very best, in the State. Let us all do what we can to make it such; and hereafter, the interest which such a determination will awaken, will at once place us in a position to give more liberal rewards to contributors, an add much to the means of enjoyment of all.

P. JOHN,
Chairman Executive Committee.

THE SECOND JUDICIAL DISTRICT JUDGE HILLIARD INSTALLED.

Having been elected by the people and commissioned by the Governor as Judge of the Second Disirict, Hon LOUIS HILLIARE proceeded to Winton on the 7th inst to open the regular term of Court. He found Hon W. A. MOORE, late Judge of the District, on hand to contest. The following is the result as given by the Windsor Times.

By previous agreement of all parties Judge Hilliard went on the Bench at 11 o'clock, and directed the Sheriff to open court which was done. Judge Moore immediately entered the court, went upon the Bench and said "Mr. Hilliard I have come here for the purpose of holding court. I am Judge by virtue of a commission from Governor Caldwell. I demand that you give up that seat." Judge Hilliard replied "I claim to be Judge by a virtue of the late election and my commission from Gov, Brogden. I shall hold this court." Whereupon Judge Moore turned and said "Sheriff proclaim order." The Sheriff cried out "order" Judge Moore then said "Mr. Sheriff open court." To which Sheriff Pipkin replied "Judge Moore I have great respect for you as a man, but I cannot obey you as a Judge. I feel bound to respect and obey the acts of our General Assembly until they are declared unconstitutional by the proper tribunal. I shall therefore recognize the authority of Judge Hilliard."

Judge Moore then said "I declare this court adjourned sine die. Mr. Clerk make a note of the fact on your record." The Judge then took his hat and left the court house. Judge Hilliard remained and presided over the court for the rest of the term. The entire affair was conducted with great propriety and dignity.

The whole question will of course be carried to the Supreme court. We think that the members of the Bar are pretty evenly divied as to who is entitled to the office.

It is stated that by taking a particular route the gold bearing fields of the Indian Black Hills can be reached without trespassing upon the Indian reservations. —Exchange.

There never has been any difficulty in finding a particular route by which the possessions of the Indians can be reached when the cupidity of the white man is stimulated. We are glad to see it reported that Gen. SHERMAN has ordered Brig. Gen. TERRY to stop all expeditions to the Black Hills, arrest and imprison their leaders, and destroy outfits. And we hope this order will be carried out and at last wipe out, in this case at least, the standing reproach that the Indian has no standing on this continent which will command the respect of the white man when money is to be made by doing him a wrong.

The grasshopper plague in Kansas has become so serious that Governor Osborn has called an extra session of the Legislature to meet on the 15th of September to devise means for the relief of settlers whose crop was destroyed by the ravages of the insect. A lady writing from Marshall county, in that State, says: "The grasshoppers ate the tops of vegetables, then the root, leaving a hole in the ground. In the absence of other fruits, we had been counting greatly on the peaches, but the trees are stripped, only the stones left hanging on by the stems."

President GRANT means to have "peace." He isn't to be trifled with. He shows a wise and energetic discretion in announcing his purpose of preserving the peace in the whole South. Forewarned is forearmed. The noisy and violent men will be extremely careful how they play with fire, as when they know that Federal troops are at hand and will maintain order at all hazards.

Continental Congress Celebration at Philadelphia.

The One Hundredth Anniversary of the meeting of the First Continental Congress at Philadelphia was celebrated on Saturday, the 5th inst in that city, in the same building in which the Congress met Sept. 5th 1774. This building, Carpenters' Hall, standing back from Chestnut street, above Third, is in good preservation. It was gaily decorated in honor of the Centennial and was filled with a company of invited guests, among whom was Vice-President Wilson. The chief interest of the proceedings centered in the oration by Henry Arnutt Brown, Esq., of Philadelphia. After graphically describing the stirring events that preceded the assembling of the first Congress, he gave vivid portraits of the leading men that composed it and closed with the following eloquent passages:

"The dangers of to-day come from within. The worship of self, the love of power, the lust for gold, the weakening of faith the decay of public virtue, the lack of private worth. These are the perils which threaten our future; these are the enemies we have to fear; these are the traitors which infest the camp; and the danger was far less when Cataline knocked with his army at the gates of Rome, than when he sat smiling in the Senate House. We see them daily face to face; in the walk of virtue, in the road to wealth, in the path of honor, on the way to happiness. Nor can we avoid them and turn back. It is not enough to rest upon the past. No man or nation can stand still. We must mount upward or go down. We must grow worse or better. It is the Eternal Law—we cannot change it.

"My countrymen, the moments are quickly passing, and we stand like some traveller upon a lofty crag that separates two boundless seas. The century that is closing is complete. 'The past,' said our great statesman, 'is secure.' The hand of detraction cannot dim its glories nor the tears of repentance wipe away its stains. Its good and evil, joy and sorrow, its truth and falsehood, its honor and its shame we cannot touch. Sigh to them, blush for them, weep for them, if we will, we cannot change them now. We might have done so once, but we cannot now. The old century is dying and they are to be buried with him; his history is finished, and they will stand upon its roll forever.

"The century that is opening is all our own. The years that lie before us are a virgin page. We can inscribe them as we will. The future of our country rests upon us; the happiness of posterity depends on us. The fate of humanity may be in our hands. That pleading voice, choked with the sobs of ages, which has so often spoken to deaf ears, is lifted up to us. It asks us to be brave, benevolent, consistent, true to the teachings of our history, proving divine descent by worth divine. It asks us to be virtuous —building up public virture upon private worth; seeking that righteousness which exalteth nations. It asks us to be patriotic—loving our country before all other things; her happiness is our happiness, her honor ours, her fame our own. It asks us in the name of Justice, in the name of Charity, in the name of Freedom, in the name of God."

The death is announced of the venerable Bishop Thomas A. Morris, of the Methodist Church. He died at Springfield, Ohio, aged eighty. For some time previous he had been in broken health and had retired from the active labors of the episcopacy. The Bishop was widely known, and in his days of active usefulness was a power in the Church. His birth place was in Kanawha Co., West Virginia.

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 7.—No rain has fallen in this vicinity since the severe storm of August 9th, and the drought has caused a scarcity of water in the Schuylkill, and the Chief Engineer of the War Department has issued a circular requesting economy on the part of the citizens in the use of water. The fountains have been stopped, and licences for water carts to sprinkle the streets have been revoked. No fire plugs are opened except in case of fire.

which can be cured by a timely resort to this standard preparation, as has been proved by the hundreds of testimonials received by the proprietors. It is acknowledged by many prominent physicians to be the most reliable preparation ever introduced for the relief and cure of all Lung complaints, and is offered to the public, sanctioned by the experience of over forty years. When resorted to in season it seldom fails to effect a speedy cure in the most severe cases of Coughs, Bronchitis, Croup, Whooping Cough, Influenza, Asthma, Colds, Sore Throat, Pains or Soreness in the Chest and Side, Liver Complaint, Bleeding at the Lungs, &c. Wistar's Balsam does not dry up a Cough, and leave the cause behind, as is the case with most preparations, but it loosens and cleanses the lungs, and allays irritation, thus removing the cause of the complaint.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC

The only Illustrated Daily Newspaper in the World.

With its issue for March 4, 1874, THE DAILY GRAPHIC entered upon the second year of a career phenomenal in the history of journalism. Its story of a twelvemonths has been a steady and unquestioned growth in popular acceptance as the most original, artistically luxurious, and wonderfully comprehensive metropolitan journal ever published in the United States.

As a brilliant novelty, the whole country has confessed its unique attraction; as a practical and marvellously complete Newspaper, it has become a daily necessity to the social and mercantile interests of one of the largest permanent constituencies ever attained by a journalistic enterprise in the same period, while its great specialty, beyond all actuality or hope of competition, as has been the wonder, delight, and new education of individuals and homes in every State of the Union. In the very idea of such utilization of the finest pictorial art, for every day's information and reflection, there is all the charm of a romance; and the realization of that idea, made visible in THE DAILY GRAPHIC, is a practical and ever-varying assimilation of the most fascinating Ornament with the commonest Use which never palls upon even the most pampered taste. From the first issue the successive multitude of its pictures has been a perfect study of mechanical and journalistic development; the inevitable early imperfections of artists and others, not yet thoroughly trained in the new process, disappearing steadily in an as steadily increasing accurancy and beauty of artistic effects. Indeed this very illustration, from day to day, of the Time,s spirit of progress in Art, as well as in Events has been an added and piquant interest, which is yet to be maintained for the public by unending future "Graphic" improvements. Scarcely more, however, for its beautiful portraits, trenchant cartoons, vivid news-etching, and unequalled reprodnctions of the world's choicest works of art, than for its unrivalled attractions as has THE DAILY GRAPHIC been nationally recognized and popularly welcomed. Its genuine editorial independence, wide sweep of intelligence, ever-varying department of literary and persona interest, sparkling correspondence and pungent criticisms, make it as much a favorite in the sanctum of the great Western or Southern or Northern newspapers as in the counting-room and the family circle.

A SUPERB PICTORIAL MIRROR

OF

NEWS, SOCIETY, AND LITERATURE.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is an Eight-page Paper, published every afternoon (three editions), in time for the errly mails to all parts of the country.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC has a larger average circulation—more copies printed and sold each day—than any other evening paper in New York excipting only the [penny] News.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is a great newspaper, as well as the only illustrated daily paper. It has special correspondents everywhere, and it has a larger staff of writers and news-gatherers than any other evening paper in New York.

THE DAILY GRAPHIC is preserved for binding by hundreds of its readers in city and county. The annual subscriber gets a Pictorial History of the Year, a volume of twenty-four hundred pages, constituting a valuable record of events and a graphic panoroma of our time and progress.

TERMS.

To Mail Subscriber............ $12 a year.

New subscribers wishing to take THE DAILY GRAPHIC on trial, may send One Dollar and receive the paper four weeks. (Only One Dollar for a superb portfolio of illustrated news and literature, making upwards of two hundred large quarto pages, the whole equivalent to a volume of eight hundred pages, magazine size.)

☞ Gold at New York 109¼, cotton 17¼c, wheat $1·20 and corn 97c.

☞ The Posters and Programmes of the Fair will be issued at an early day.

☞ How true it is that the most of peoples misfortunes are more supportable than the comments of their friends upon them.

☞ We call attention to the revised advertisement of GEO. D. POOL Esq., Land Agent, on our fourth page.

☞ Extra copies of our paper containing the Premium List of the Fair can be had at 5 cents each.

☞ We are sorry to report it, but it is too true that there are many young people in our midst who are troubled with a chronic indisposition to exertion.

☞ We always stand by our friends. Those who prove themselves to be such never do so in vain. And we are ever ready to lend a helping hand to those who satisfy us that they are worthy.

☞ Judge EURE will hold Court at Gatesville next week. J. P. WHEDBEE Esq., will qualify and take charge of the Solicitors office at that time. He has the ability and we believe it to be his purpose to perform his full duty.

☞ Remember that no person can legally apply to the County Commissioners for a Retail Liquor license within the corporate limits of Elizabeth City until he shall have applied to and obtained consent from the Town Commissioners.

☞ The Managers of the Cincinnati Industrial Exhibition will accept our thanks for a complimentary ticket. We also acknowledge a similar favor from the Tar River Agricultural Society to attend its Fifth Annual Fair to be held at Weldon on the 20th, 21st, 22nd and 23d days of October.

☞ The editor of the Washington Echo is at it again. His efforts only remind us of the frothy declamation of the small "limb of the law" in the Vermont Legislature. An old farmer, rising, said: "Mr. Speaker, I would like to reply to that are gentleman's speech, but it wrenches a feller so to kick at nothin, that I believe I won't."

☞ The citizens residing on what is known as Dry Point have petitioned the County Commissioners to be annexed to Elizabeth City township. Their distance from place of voting and from school are the reasons assigned. The Commissioners have postponed action until the regular October meeting of the Board.

☞ Abundant crops are but another name for great material wealth. It is drought, scarcity, and failure that really impoverishes a country. For the past few years the latter have visited this section and it has felt the results. Now, however, the prospect is changing. The crops are good and the people are feeling encouragement.

☞ The County Commissioners visited the jail on Monday. They found that the sanitary well being of the prisoners demanded immediate improvements and they ordered the Sheriff to make them without delay. Every instinct of humanity and the genius of our christian civilization require that some regard be paid to the laws of Hygiene in the management of prisons.

☞ We desire correspondence, we solicit it, but spare us from the infliction of writers who indulge in what a learned friend of ours styles "swelling platitudes and grandiose ephemeral ineptitudes." A little pompous complacency we can endure, but too much is too much. Our Edenton correspondent will understand why his letter don't appear He had better send it to the other shop.

☞ There are few things that speak better for a people and a country than good roads and bridges. In several of the counties of this Albemarle section both are too much neglected. So far as this county is concerned there is no excuse for it. With comparatively little work, and the exercise of judgment in that work, we could have the best of roads in Pasquotank. And the proper officers must see to it that this is done.

☞ If each one of our present subscribers will get one friend to take the NORTH CAROLINIAN, it will double the list and enable us to furnish a still better paper. Why not "go for" your neighbors, and especially borrowers? Reader, please note that by acting upon this suggestion all parties will be benefited—yourself, the new subscriber and your friend the publisher. Are not these sufficient reasons to induce you to act at once?

☞ We yield to no man in our devotion to the interests of this town, this county and this District. All our interests are here and as the town and country and district improve and prosper we are benefited. We become impatient when we see evidences of retrogression; we are not satisfied in seeing things standing still. There must be developement and progress. We have been agitating these subjects now for five years. We propose "fighting on this line" if it takes five years more.

☞ Brother WINSTON, of the Windsor Times, proclaims his intention of making his paper "the best in the State." The ambition is a laudable one and we wish him great success. But he must remember that the NORTH CAROLINIAN stands A No. 1, and we intend to keep it so.

☞ We are glad to learn that the course of the NORTH CAROLINIAN meets the approval of active and influential Republicans in the County and District, and that they are now about to take steps to increase its circulation. We assure them that their efforts will be appreciated and remembered.

☞ There are some merchants who think they "can dispense with advertising," because they are so well known. Let such ask why it is that A. T. Stewart & Co. spend half a million every year for advertising. That firm is tolerably well known. We never heard it accused, either, of making bad investments.

☞ We are requested to announce that the Rev. Mr. Gallaudett, having returned to this place, (D. V.) Divine service will be celebrated in Christ Church as follows: On Sunday at 11 A. M., and 5 P. M., and on Wednesday at 5 P. M. The Holy Communion on the first Sunday of each month, and on Saint's days and festivals of the Church. Children's Church on the third Sunday of each month at 5 P. M. and Sunday School on Sunday at 9 A. M. All are invited to attend these services.

☞ For the past two years the U. S. Coast Survey have had a party making the triangulation of Pamlico and Albemarle Sounds, calculating latitude and longitude. The object is to enable topographers and hydrographers to give the accurate topography and soundings of these bodies of water and their tributaries. The party is now at Long Shoal Point, near the Light House. It is expected to complete the work by the 1st of June 1875.

☞ The "grand Conservative Celebration" at Washington, this State, on Thursday last was not the success its originators had hoped for. Every effort was made; it was registered at this place and echoed at home, but it was "no go" so far as this side the Sound is concerned. The truth is, the shrewder politicians of that party decide that all this jollificating is a mistake; that it is unsafe to hollow too loudly until they are sure that they are out of the woods. Two years hence there will be another election and they fear a reaction. And well they may, for thousands already regret the vote they gave on the 6th of Agust.

☞ It is suggested to the Executive Committee of the Albemarle Agricultural Society to substitute for all the premiums, excepting for stock and the trials of speed, neatly executed Diplomas. This suggestion comes from a large number of public spirited citizens, including many ladies and is made for two reasons: 1st. The Society being in its infancy, dare not risk offering large money premiums, and 2ndly, nearly everybody would value a diploma issued by the Society more than any premium its financial condition would allow its officers to offer. This Diploma, neatly framed, could be kept as a souvenir of the Fair of 1874. As this suggestion is urged by so many the Committee feel it their duty to take the matter into consideration. They desire to hear from all, that when they meet to revise and correct the published premium list they may be able to fully satisfy the public. This is their aim and they hope to be sustained.

THE CANT OF IMPOSTERS—It is obvious that physics and constitutional vigor is the best defense against disease, that even the vendors of drastic purgatives advertise them as tonics, stomachics and invigorants, in the hope of enlisting the confidence of the public in the devitalizing and pernicious portions It is amusing to note how these impostors imitate and copy the language in which the medicinal properties of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters are described Although the effect of their rasping evacuants is to destroy the tone of the digestive organs and the bowels, and to rob the system of its vital strength, they are unscrouplously recommended to the weak and prostrate victims of disease as stimulants! It is time this humbug (not a very successful one it is true, thanks to the mature common sense of the American people) was stigmatized as it deserves Such mischievous falsehoods should be exposed pro bono publico Hostetters Stomach Bitters, be it distinctly understood, is a stimulant It has a spirituous basis, and that basis is the vehicle which diffuses its wonderful sanitary principles through every part of the system The tonic, alterative and regulating ingredients of the Bitters would be comparatively inert if they were not, so to speak, carried to the localities where they are required by the stimulating agent. The cant which protests against the use of a pure alcoholic fluid, when employed as a means of giving full effect to medicinal extracts of the highest utility, is the cant of charlatanism Every intelligent physician so characterizes it, and the sick who are griped, convulsed and debilitated by the nauseous and disgusting nostrums of the parties who put it forth soon fall to their sorrow that it is a delusion and a snare Hostetter's Bitters, the great sanitary stimulant of the age, is, in the truest sense of the word, a wholesome, vitalizing, renovating preparation

ELIZABETH CITY NORTH CAROLINA.

TWO AMERICAN MAGAZINES.—

The excellence of AMERICAN MAGAZINES has become so well recognized abroad that one of the leading English Papers, the LONDON WEEKLY REGISTER, in a recent issue, thus speaks of SCRIBNER MONTHLY.

"We are constrained to own that SCRIBNER'S MONTHLY carries off the prize against all shilling monthly serials for brilliancy of illustrations and variety of contents. It is simply a wonderful shillen's worth. Nothing can be more charming than the cuts,—full of force and vigor; the light and shade are managed with a truly artistic power. Out of its one and twenty original articles, we really do not know which to choose as best, for each and all are excellent."

Not only is it true that Scribner's Monthly excels the English Magazines, but it is "The Best of the American Monthlies."

In the extent variety of themes, it has never been even approached, much less excelled. It has a large page and gives a greater variety in its contents than any other of the Standard American Monthlies.

In literary character, and in the brilliancy and ability of its Editorial Departments, is enjoys an equal pre-eminence.

Its conductors started with the definite aim of making it the best magazine in the world, of which they have for a moment lost sight, and they point with pride and pleasure to the May and June numbers, recently issued and ask for them a candid examination and a careful comparison of their merits with those of other magazines; and they renew their pledge to the public, to strive for still higher excellence in the future.

A considerable demand has recently arisen in England for Sir. Nicholas, Scribner's New magazine for boys and girls, one publisher desiring to secure an edition of three thousand of first bound volume (when completed) with his imprint.

The success of St. Nicholas in this country has been even more remarkable than that of Scribner's Monthly. It is pronounced to be "an ideally perfectagazine for children" re and, as is the case with all the best literature for children, it has been found to possess surpassing interest for grown-up readers, as well.

The influence of the periodicals of the day can scarcely be estimated, especially upon the rising generation. Parents and teachers cannot afford to be indifferent to this influence, or careless in relation to the character of the literature furnished to the children outside of their school lessons. In St. Nicholas not only are History, Natural Philosophy, Literature Fine Arts, and anufactures presented in and attractive way to young readers, but the children are stimulated to seek information for themselves.

The Publishers will send to any address a specimen number of St. Nicholas, postage prepaid, on receipt of ten cents, the bare cost of paper and printing. The magazines are sold by all firstclass Booksellers and Newsdealers, everywhere.

How Radiation Concerns Farmers.

Prof. Tyndall in a lecture said:—"A cobweb spread over a blossom is sufficient to protect it from nightly chill." In this rather fanciful expression we have a hint of a great fact in natural science. The best of it is upon the practical bearing it has upon the common things of every-day farm life. Radiation refers to heat. Without going into the quality and general properties of heat, let us look at its most remarkable property—radiation. If we heat a brick in the fire and then place it on the ground its heat begins to radiate in every direction. By holding the hand beside it we perceive the increasing heat. By placing the hand over it we notice an increased radiation. If we remove the brick and examine the ground we find it also has been heated, though in a less degree. Had we placed the brick upon a block of ice radiation would have gone on as before, and at a much greater speed.

From these common things farm life has to deal with—plants, animals, &c.—radiation proceeds incessantly. When we consider that every plant or animal that lives must maintain a certain fixed temperature or die, the practical bearing of the applied science of radiation becomes plain. The turnip will not thrive in a temperature less than 40°; no flower will bloom if the air stand below 55°; no cow or horse can live in health unless its blood stands at blood heat, and every child that lives must be protected from radiation by suitable clothing, that its animal heat may never fall below the happy 98°.

To return to our experimental brick. There is nothing like experiment. Experiments show us the working of natural laws. Applied science is nothing more than carrying the results of pure experiment into real life. Heat the brick and this time place it on the hearth in the warm kitchen. Radiation takes place as before, but at a slower rate. If it is chilled in half an hour outside, here it will be perhaps an hour cooling, and even then will not become so cool; if it cools to 4o° out of doors, here it may not fall to 45°.

Notice this little fact and stow it away in your mind. Presently you shall see its application to your cows in the barn. There are dollars and cents in the latter matter. Now heat three bricks and ask the housekeeper for a piece of wollen cloth, a muslin handkerchief and an old newspaper. Now lift one brick from the stove with the tongs and roll it up in the wolen. Twine the handkerchief round another brick, and wrap up the other tightly in paper.

Meanwhile let us examine another matter. Heat a brick and drop it into a pail of water. Take it out at once, and notice how quickly it has cooled.

To return to our packed bricks. We find the woolen covered one at about one hundred and fifty degrees, the paper covered one at about a hundred degrees, and the muslin covered one at sixty degrees. To look at the practical side of this we see that radiation proceeds at different rates through different substances. Suppose the brick a child. His animal heat would have radiated through the muslin quickly and been almost entirely saved by the woolen.

As another experiment wrap the woolen around a hot brick in such a way that one face of the brick is exposed to the air. Lay it down exposed side up. Tear off a bit of the newspaper slightly larger than the brick. Roll up more paper and make a cap or tent over another hot brick. We find that the woolen covered one is the coolest this time. The one with the paper shade over it less cool, and the one with the paper hood warmest of all. Wherefore? Simply because radiation inio the air, when it is free to move upward, is most rapid. The wollen about the sides is nearly useless while the top is exposed. The bit of paper though it only covers the top, does better, as the upward movement of the air about it is in a measure prevented. The paper hood being air tight locks in a cone shaped mass of air. The air, unable to escape with its heat, stores up, and reradiates it again, and so checks the cooling of the brick.

To save a plant from early frost protect it from the top. Radiation is most active upward. A paper screen over the top will accomplish more than a woolen would be best of all. A paper hood

Make your barn tight, especially about the top, and your cattle will eat less, be in a better condition, and bring a larger return in milk or meat. Radiation from their bodies being reduced, health, comfort and happiness will return to them, and money to you. A barn full of cracks is an offense against science and your pocket.

A small blanket on the top of a horse's back will do more good than a large one badly fastened on.

Radiation takes place more rapidly through water than air. Radiation through aqueous vapor is slow. Keep all the feet on your place dry, be they shod with iron or leather. To save your green-house coal keep the air inside damp. Radiation is slow in a damp atmosphere; quick in a dry one. To save your vineyard from an early frost build fires of green wood among the vines at night. The aqueous vapor caused by the smouldering wood will act as a blanket and perhaps save the crop. A fire of dry wood, warm it ever so fiercely, will not do half so much good.

Apply these few facts to your every day life on the farm and you will find money in them.

Keeping old Potatoes.

Potatoes to be good, should never be exposed to the light, but be kept in as dark a place as possible. After they begin to sprout in the Spring, they should be taken up from the bins or heaps and kept in boxes or barrels. If you have a few barrels saved out for family use, instead of picking them over and spreading them every few weeks, put them into enough barrels so that you can easily turn them from one to another. This keeps them moving so often that the sprouts cannot grow enough to do much harm. The sprouts which come out from the potato use up the nourishment it contains, and leave it soft, watery, and insipid. By treating them as proposed above, they may be kept in condition for the table several weeks longer than by sprouting them, and at the same time save a deal of work.—N. E. Farmer.

Temperance is encouraged in the British navy by giving the men who do not want grog its equivalant in tea and sugar or in money. Nearly all the strickly temperate men in the navy wear a good conduct stripe.

A Cape May youth used the deeds of his farther's farm for gun wads. The stamp on the bottom of the document was't anything like the impression the old man made on the same part of the lad's anatomy.

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely Vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Vinegar Bitters?" Our answer is, that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Vinegar Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs in Bilious Diseases.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use Vinegar Bitters as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.

No Person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.

Grateful Thousands proclaim Vinegar Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.

Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangements of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for the purpose equal to Dr. J. Walker's Vinegar Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter with which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Dizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offsprings of Dyspepsia. One bottle will prove a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.

Scrofula, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Swelled Neck, Goitre, Scrofulous Inflammations, Indolent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, Walker's Vinegar Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.

For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.

Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Type-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of Walker's Vinegar Bitters occasionally.

[Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter,] Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pustules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurfs, Discolorations of the Skin, Humors and Diseases of the Skin of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.

Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectually destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vermifuges, no anthelminitics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

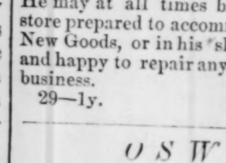

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, at the dawn of womanhood or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence that improvement is soon perceptible.

Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only sensible treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use Vinegar Bitters.

Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find its impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Sores; cleanse it when you find it obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements for capitalisis and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where: and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate, in the sociability of the people, in great fertility, and durability of soil, no section can equal it.

There are fourteen steamers—most of them of large size—now plying between this place and Norfolk, Va., and Baltimore, making the town easily accessible to emigrants, and the means of cheap water transportation for farm products, and other articles, unsurpassed. In addition to this a railroad &c., &c.

A railroad will soon be built to Norfolk, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A desirable farm of 260 acres—one third cleared, and the balance covered with the most valuable timber the country affords is offered for sale. It is six miles from town, one mile from navigable water, has four buildings, is in a good neighborhood, and on a very public road. There is a school within one mile and a church within two miles of the place. The land produces finely, corn, cotton, wheat, oats, &c., and is offered for the low price of $15 an acre on easy payments.

Another farm equally valuable as the above containing 186 acres is offered for sale for $1.600, one half cash, balance in a year with interest. This farm is within one mile of a navigable river, is only one mile from a church and school house. has good dwellings and all necessary out-buildings upon it, is mostly cleared, and is very productive. It is only six miles from this town, and is within two miles of the town of Nixonton.

A farm 490 acres 2 miles from town is offered for $18 an acre. This is rich land, is mostly cleared, and has good buildings. On account of its locality and productions it is very desirable.

A valuable farm of 219 acres is also offered for sale for $1,500, one half cash balance in a year. This farm is two miles from the town of Nixonton, and seven miles from Elizabeth City. It has good Buildings, is on a public road, and in a good neighborhood where school houses and churches are near. Two-thirds of this farm is cleared and in fair cultivation, and the balance abounds in good timber. There is a great bargain offered in this farm.

A valuable farm of 200 acres nearly all cleared is offered for $2,000 on easy payments. This farm is twelve miles from town, is near a navagable River is easy productive, in a good neighborhood, on a public road and very near a church and school house. This too is a desirable purchase. Also a farm of 400 acres 3 miles from town is offered The land is rich, the buildings are fine and it is mostly in fine cultivation. Price $25 per acre.

A farm of 500 acres in Pasquotank County, 6 miles from town, and one mile from the River, with good new dwelling built in modern style, barn, stables, four tenant houses scattered over the farm, fine water, &c. This farm is situated on the most public road in the County, has 300 acres cleared and balance in splendid pine, oak, cypress, maple, sweet gum, and other valuable timber. It is peculiarly adapted to raising cotton, $50 per acre, net, having been realized on a part of it this year in cotton. It also grows corn, wheat, oats, and other crops well. It is pre-eminently that is published in this county, from its never containing anything that would offend the feelings of any one, either in a religious or political sense, or that could not be read at any fireside without objection from the most fastidious.

The circulation of the Saturday Evening Post, though not quite so large perhaps, as its younger contemporaries, is not, like that of some of them, fluctuating. and too often short lived, but based upou the intrinsic merit of the paper itself, and not dependent on any extraneous influences, such as the popularity of individual writers, &c.

Good, however, as the Saturday Evening Post has been in the past, it is our intention to make it still better in the future, and with this object in view we will effect a marked improvement in every department of the paper, and will call to our assistance writers of admitted ability and known reputation.

By increasing its former attractions, and adding many judicious and pleasing novelties by s'udyiug how to please and cultivate the popular taste, by increasing industry and enterprise, and by enlarged facilities, we hope to make new friends with each and every issue, and continue to maintain the claim of the Saturday Evening Post to its title of The Oldest and the Best of Family Story Papers.

THE GREAT BALOON.

You've heard about the great balloon,
In which Professor Wise
Proposed to go to Europe,
By sailing through the skies,
He proposed to show the people
A quicker way for trips
Than ever had been known before,
By sailing o'er in ship.

Well everything seemed lovely
Upon that Autumn day,
When they began to pump in gas
To bear the barge away.
They pumped and pumped with all their power,
And things seemed nigh adjusted—
When there came an awful crash,
And the mighth bubble busted.

It's ever thus in human life,
Go whereso'er we may,
The darkest night will oft succeed
The brightest, sunniest day,
There are exceptions to this rule,
Where all the days are fair,—
For one, go down io JOHNSON HALL,
You'll find things all right there.

We've thought it best in cases like this,
This little fact to mention;
You need not ferr that they'll inflate
Beyond their power of retention.
And when they undertake to go
Their geer's so well adjusted,
They'll move straigh forward to their work,
With no fear of being "busted."
